

OPERATION TO RESTORE FIREMAN'S MENTALITY

Doctors at Cooper Hospital, Camden, will perform a delicate operation on Fireman Joseph Ware in an effort to restore his mentality, which became affected after he was struck in the face by the crank handle of an auto fire engine.

It was at first thought that only the nasal bones were broken, but when the sufferer's reason began to weaken the surgeons concluded that a piece of fractured bone is pressing against the brain. Fellow-firemen are on guard at Ware's bedside.
