

ATTACKED OFFICER WHO MADE ARREST

While passing Orchard and Sycamore streets, Camden, yesterday, Policeman Camillus Appley, who is 6 feet 4 inches tall and weighs over 300 pounds, was attacked by Boleslaus Green, a Polish resident.

Appley was in citizen's dress, but he placed Green under arrest and started for the patrol box. Nearing it, he was attacked by three other men, and Green, escaping, ran into his house at 1128 Sycamore street.

Appley followed and again arrested Green, only to be attacked by friends of Green. During the fight, which lasted twenty minutes, Appley was kicked in the face, nearly destroying the sight of his left eye, and had his clothing nearly torn off. Policeman Donovan, another six-footer, came to his rescue and between them they sent Green, John M. Gells and William Danka to the city jail. Appley went to Cooper Hospital and after he had his injuries dressed went back and arrested Marion Lofkuski, who he charged with being one of his assailants.
